I. Thème

The decision of the supreme court, which was remodeled by Donald Trump during his mandate to revoke federal abortion right in June 2022 had the effect of a bomb in the United States where it was supported by a vast majority of Americans. The anger caused by this decision partially explained the Democrats' resilience during the midterm election which are usually catastrophic for the president's party. (...)

The results of the elections on the fifth of November during which ten polls on abortion were conducted showed that that the topic stayed one of the main concerns for a majority of Americans, however it wasn't enough to let Democrats win the votings. Two republican states adopted laws to protect abortion while bringing simultaneously massive support to Donald Trump for the global elections.

II. Compréhension

The reversal of Roe v. Wade caused a rise of substandard medical care cases in the US. Womens are forced to give birth to babies with fatal anomalies and pregnancy complications can't be properly addressed by aborting the fetus even though it's already doomed and it threatens the the mother's health. Doctors are forced to wait until their patients are in life-threatening situations before they can help them and so even clinicians that are not primarily abortion providers want to move to a state where abortion is legal.
